DIRECTOR'S NOTE

H.M.S. Pinafore is one of the most popular and extensively performed of all the Savoy operas. It seems hard to believe that an unusually sweltering heat wave, which kept patrons away from the theaters, almost stifled Pinafore completely, after its opening in May, 1878. But when Arthur Sullivan cleverly included a selection of the delightful Pinafore melodies at a concert he was conducting, he caught the Londoners' fancy and soon audiences were flocking in droves to the nautical opera.

Over the years, many great performers have added their own personal touches to the staging of Pinafore and so the show comes dowered with a wealth of theatrical tradition. With grateful acknowledgement to productions before us, we have included many of these traditions as well as some decidedly new twists that we offer as our own contributions!

As a warning to the unawary, I must tell you that one of the traditions we have "borrowed" is the addition of an encore verse to the bright Bell Trio in Act II ("Never Mind the Why and Wherefore"). This tradition is the product of Martyn Green, who charmed his fans by humorously playing a different bell with each repetition, ranging from the triangle to the try-your-strength circus bell. Of course, such antics do not exactly advance the plot, but after all, this is (to quote Gilbert) "...not Italian opera, but only a burlesque of the worst possible kind." At any rate audiences adored Green, calling him back as many as seven times. While our staging is somewhat different, we hope you will be entertained enough to indulge us in our one encore (we promise, only one). Enough said, enjoy the show!

SYNOPSIS

ACT I: After the chorus of sailors aboard H.M.S. Pinafore introduce themselves in song, Little Buttercup comes aboard to sell provisions to the ship's company. (Sullivan, incidentally, taught her famous tune to his parrot.) Ralph (pronounced "Rafe") Rackstraw enters and tells his fellow sailors of his love for the captain's daughter Josephine. She is supposed to marry Sir Joseph Porter, the first Lord of the Admiralty, who is due to arrive this day (along with his accompanying gaggle of sisters, cousins, and aunts). Josephine tells her father, Captain Corcoran, that she has had the misfortune to fall in love with a common sailor (Ralph, of course). Being dutiful and proud, however, she will keep her feelings to herself and marry Sir Joseph. Even after meeting Sir Joseph and finding him pompous and boring, she still has the fortitude to spurn poor Ralph when he confesses his love. After his rejection, Ralph is set on suicide, but is interrupted in the nick of time by a repentant Josephine. The two of them plan their elopement, encouraged by Sir Joseph's relatives and the sailors -- all but Dick Deadeye, who tries in vain to discourage the union.

ACT II: The act opens with a worried Captain Corcoran musing on the problems of his daughter and Sir Joseph. Little Buttercup hints to him of mysterious changes to come. When Sir Joseph and his cousin Hebe express their displeasure at Josephine's coolness, the Captain tells them that she is probably holding aloof because of the difference in rank between a captain's daughter and Sir Joseph. Josephine's soliloquy, however, shows that she's debating about giving up her wealthy home to live in poverty with a lowly sailor. Sir Joseph and her father appear at this critical moment to tell her that "love levels all ranks," which she takes as encouragement about Ralph. Thanks to a warning from Dick Deadeye about the planned elopement, the Captain is ready when Ralph and Josephine begin to leave the ship together, escorted by the sailors. Unfortunately, in the course of commenting on their plan, the Captain utters a swear word just as Sir Joseph enters. Sir Joseph sends the Captain to his cabin for such shocking behavior (echoed by the chorus, in a fine touch of Gilbertian humor), but then sends Ralph off to the ship's dungeon in chains. At this point, Buttercup steps forward with an improbable tale of babies switched in infancy, and the resulting new identities produce three happy couples united in matrimony!

GLOSSARY

Buttercup's wares:
- jacky - twists of tobacco soaked in rum (for chewing)
- soft tommy - a kind of bread
- chickens & conies - wild rabbits
- pretty polonies - smoked sausages named, like the sandwich meat, after Bologna, the Italian town where they were first made

reddest beauty in all Spithead - body of water off Portsmouth

Dick Deedeye, Bill Bobstay (boatswain), Bob Becket (carpenter's mate) - the last names of these sailors all refer to parts of a ship's ropes or rigging foremast hands - those sailors who serve "before the mast" (those below the rank of officer) [see Quarterdeck] quarterdeck - the deck to the aft of the mainmast where only commissioned officers may promenade ship a selvagee - a hank of rope yarn made into a strap or sling

Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B. - Knight Commander of the (Order of the) Bath (high honor)

bang the loud nine-pounders go - the smallest of the battery of cannons carried on Royal Navy ships (which also included 18 and 32-pounders)

pocket borough - refers to a parliamentary seat controlled by a single individual (usually wealthy landowner); these seats were abolished by the Great Reform Act of 1832

grog - rum diluted with water (from the nickname of the Admiral who began the custom of issuing the drink to sailors, "Old Grog," so called for the program cloak he usually wore)

British tar - slang for sailor

Cimmerian darkness - according to Homer's Odyssey, the Cimmerians lived in a land where the sun never shines bumboat woman - boat used to peddle provisions to ships in port

"jackdaws strut in peacock feathers"; "storks turn out to be but Togs"; "bulls are but inflated frogs" - three references to Aesop's fables turbot is ambitious brill - kinds of fish, turbot being preferred

gild the farthing - lowest denomination of British coin at the time the prospect is Elysian - in Greek mythology, Elysian fields were the home of the blessed cat-o'nine-tails (or simply "the cat") - a whip with nine knotted lashes used for punishment

fo'c'sle - short for "forecastle," the forward part of the ship, usually containing the crew's quarters

no telephone - the first telephone transmission was in 1876, and the first London exchange opened in June of 1878, a month after Pinafore did
